

The 14th New Media Film Festival announces its winners of $45,000

Los Angeles, CA — On June 8th, winners and recipients of a $45,000 award from the 14th New Media Film Festival were announced live.

From 22 countries, nominees submitted 106 new films and content to the Los Angeles New Media Film Festival. Countries included: Australia, Canada, China, Colombia, Faroe Islands, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico, Portugal, Singapore, Slovenia, Switzerland, Taiwan, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United States, and Uruguay.

Winners of the prize money included [insert names of winners].

This festival provides industry exposure to novices and Oscar winners with various premiers — 37 world, 10 U.S., and 14 L.A. — to show off the hard work creators have put into the classical and technological submissions of film and content.

The New Media Film Festival is proud to have contributors from Marvel, HBO, PBS, BBC, Simon & Schuster, Rolling Stone, and more to judge the nominee submissions.

This festival boasts valuable experience and exposure for aspiring filmmakers and content creators. From its red carpet, VIP soiree, prominent industry guest speakers, networking, live screenings, and award ceremonies, this festival serves as an environment for creator growth and opportunity.
